

Each commit is a save point in time

Read left to right: oldest to newest. (git log shows the newest one first.)

Every commit remembers the one before it — that chain is your project's history.